ANOTHER BANK IN MADISON HELD UP, $4000 IS STOLEN

Union Trust Co., on Springfield-Chicago Highway, Held Up Shortly After
the Noon Hour.

ROBBERS FIND CASHIER ALONE

One of Men Strikes Official Several Times With Revolver Before Scooping
Up Money.

For the third time in four months, and the second time in a week robbers swooped down on a bank in the Twenties today and hauled away the cash supply. This time it was the Union Trust Co. of Madison, 1215 Madison avenue, on the Springfield-Chicago highway.

While a check of the loss was not completed, the cashier said it was between $4000 and $5000, and could not be more than the higher figure.

A V. Andrews, cashier and secretary-treasurer of the bank, was alone in the institution at 1 p. m.
of his desk in the rear. Two men entered and walked down the narrow lobby in aimless fashion, suspecting a holdup. Andrews moved behind the cage of the tellers' space,
and asked him for blank
checks. Just then a third man entered, drew a revolver and ordered
Andrews to throw up his hands.

Robber Strikes Cashier.
One of the robbers, none of whom were armed, jumped over a rail and went in the cage, where he struck Andrews between the shoulders and asked him for blank
checks. Just then a third man entered, drew a revolver and ordered
Andrews to throw up his hands.

Two men seated on the sidewalk
near the bank door saw the robbers appear. They were Joe Barokovich, bank janitor, and Ella Christ-off, who was in front of an adjoining dry goods store at 1213 Madison avenue. The robbers who entered the bank came from the south and simultaneously a large automobile containing three men came from the north.

Threatened Janitor.
One of the men in the machine
said to the janitor, pointing a revolver at him, "Come here, you."
Instead of obeying, Barokovich ran into the dry goods store and found hiding place in the rear, telling the proprietor as he passed through, "There's robbers in the bank!"

One of the men from the machine followed the janitor into the store, but, instead, assumed a respectful air and bought a 10-cent handkerchief. As this man walked out, he muttered to Christoff, "Sit still, you, or we'll shoot your head off."

U. S. WORLD FLYERS' PLAN 825-MILE NONSTOP JUMP

Will Try to Reach Fredericksdal in Southern Greenland Without Going to Angmagssalik.

By the Associated Press.
REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 18.—
The two American flyers around the world attempted this morning to take off on the long North Atlantic hop to Fredericks-dal, near Cape Farewell, East Greenland, and in doing so, both of the planes were injured in perhaps the most serious mishap so far of the globe-encircling trip.

One of the planes broke its spreader bar and the second machine broke its propeller.

By the Associated Press.
REYKJAVIK, Iceland, Aug. 18.—
Lieut. Lowell H. Smith, commander of the American army round-the-world flight, has decided to give up the proposed flight from Reykjavik to Angmagssalik, on the east coast of Greenland, and with Lieut. Erik Nelson will fly instead to Fredericksdal, on the southwestern point of Greenland, a short distance from Cape Farewell.

Bad weather, again prevented the aviators from hopping off today. They had intended to attempt the resumption of the flight at 8 o'clock this morning. They made a short trial flight, but it is unlikely that they will attempt to hop off today as an early start is needed because of the few hours of daylight.

The jump from Reykjavik to Fredericksdal will be the longest

they have attempted in their world flight, about 825 miles. It is estimated that without stopping the airmen will be forced to fly about 12 hours.

Both Lieut. Smith and Lieut.
Nelson appeared to be cheerful
over the decision to go to Fred-ericksdal. Lieut. Smith said he was very glad that the question of a landing place had been settled and that he and Nelson would make their start from Reykjavik
on the first day that weather conditions are favorable.

While the correspondent was talking with the American flyers, Lieut. Locatelli, the Italian airman, who reached Reykjavik yesterday from Hofslof Hornafjord, called on Lieut. Smith and handed him a letter from the American attaché
of the embassy in Rome.

Lieut. Locatelli arrived at 11:44 o'clock.

ON BOARD THE U. S. CRUIS-ER RALEIGH, Aug. 18.—After cruising up and down the coast of Greenland for a week in the vicinity of Angmagssalik, the Raleigh has headed for a new position by going about east-northeast of Cape Farewell, the southernmost point in Greenland, to be in readiness for the flight of the American army planes from Reykjavik to Fredericksdal, a short distance to the northwest of Cape Farewell.

DEAUVILLE, Aug. 18.—The King of Deauville this year is Andree Citroen, the Henry Ford of France. He met all the big game players at baccarat and a group of Greek players that had become known for steady playing was forced to withdraw in front of him.

He is reported to have cleaned up 10,000,000 francs ($172,000) Saturday night, the Greeks quitting long before the final figures were announced, fearing a repetition of their big loss of the same period
last year when they dropped 20, 000,000.

Deauville sees the heaviest playing in France. Among the plungers are three Greek brothers, Va-gliano and Coudoulean. The Greeks are among the "regulars" at Monte Carlo and Deauville, but Citroen,
with millions of francs in his pocket,
forced the trio to cede the baccarat title to him.

Specialist in Genetic Psy-

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—The endocrine glands affect the emotional life, according to an admission which Clarence S. Darrow, chief counsel for Nathan Leopold Jr.
and Richard Loeb, slayers of Robert Frank, drew today from Dr.
H. Douglas Singer, State alienist, on cross-examination in the Frank hearing. The answer came in this form: "Are the endocrine glands part of the emotional life?" "Yes," he said.

"Do they affect it?" "If they are part of it, they must affect it," Dr. Singer is the alienist who used the term "schizophrenic" Saturday to denote a split personality.
Darrow referred to the word as
that "stays thing."

Additional hundreds, including many members of the official Notification Committee, arrived on early trains and taxed hotel facilities.

Gov. Bryan, early in the day, went over last-minute details of the program ceremonies with members of the Notification Committee, and later conferred with Clem L. Shaver, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who arrived this morning from Chicago, regarding his campaign itinerary.

While it has not been stated officially when his stump-ing tour actually will start, it is understood the Governor will not leave the State capital for Sept. 1.
Darrow's argument for members of the Notification Committee and other prominent visitors was held at the Governor's home. The reception was informal, no speeches were made, and the program was discussed in a friendly way.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi,
who will act as official spokesman for the Democratic National Committee in notifying Gov. Bryan of his nomination, held informal conferences with Bryan and later expressed satisfaction with the trend of political affairs, particularly in his home State, where he is a candidate for re-election tomorrow.

The notification ceremonies,
which will start at 8 o'clock, central standard time, will be held at the University of Nebraska Memorial Stadium, capable of seating 40,000 persons. With fair weather members of the local committee predicted the stands will be filled.
The speakers' stand, located in the center of the stadium, has been provided with a cover for the protection of its occupants. In event of rain, however, spectators either
will have to go under the stands
or leave the stadium for shelter,
although there is sufficient protection beneath an upper tier for a few hundred.

The exercises will be carried out
rain or shine, members of the Arrangement Committee said. The weather forecast for partly cloudy for tonight with possible local thunderstorms did not dampen the enthusiasm of those in charge of the ceremonies to stage the affair.

Preparations have been made to broadcast the exercises by radio with the aid of a relay through the Hastings station of the Westinghouse Electric Co.

Beginning at 8 o'clock with a serenade of the Governor's home,
the exercises will be carried out
under the stars. The preliminary will include concerts throughout the city, followed by a grand concert at the stadium.

Senator Harrison, following the invitation by the Rev. Dr. A. A.
Brooks, pastor of the Trinity M. E.
Church, and the singing by the audience of "The Star-Spangled Banner" will deliver his address of notification, and Gov. Bryan will bring the ceremonies to a close with his speech of acceptance.

"END OF THE WAR HAS COME AT LAST"

Several Names Considered
for the American Agent
—President and Family
Attend Church Services.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Aug. 18.—Premier Herriot of Great Britain
today sent letters to President Herriot of France and Premier Theunis of Belgium, urging that France and Belgium take every possible step to evacuate the Ruhr in less time than the one-year period agreed upon
at the international conference.

"In the opinion of the British Government," MacDonald said,
"continued occupation may prejudice the working of the Dawes plan, and may jeopardize the arrangement agreed to
at the London conference."

President Coolidge today rated acceptance of the Dawes program by the European Powers as the most important development for the world since the armistice, unless the Washington arms conference might possibly be accepted.

In his opinion, it ushers in a new international era, making a definite termination of the World War and the establishment of lasting peace.
As a secondary ground for satisfaction, he feels the action taken Saturday in London manifests the wisdom of the policy pursued by his administration with regard to the European problem.

President Coolidge made no effort to outline concretely the advantages he expects to accrue to this country from the reparations settlement. His expressions were confined to a statement given out by Secretary Slomp, which had been written by the President.
Slomp made it public along with a cable message from Ambassador Kellogg.

Widom of U. S. Co-operation.
In discussing the settlement, the statement said: "He (the President) believes this is the most important result that has been accomplished
since the armistice, with the possible exception of the Washington conference. It demonstrates as nothing else could the wisdom of the American position and the effectiveness of the American method of co-operation."

"With the Governments of Europe taking this wise course, there should be little difficulty in acquiring the necessary financial support from private sources in this country. It looks as if the end of the war had come at last, and the beginning of an honorable and hope, a lasting peace is at hand."

To Select American Agent.
Within the next two or three days the President will decide on the agent to co-operate with the Reparations Commission and supervise the carrying out of the Dawes plan. Officially he cannot participate in the appointment, but he will have his unofficial say.

Several names have been under consideration. The President would have desired the services of Gov. D. Young, who worked with Gen. Dawes on the committee of experts, and Young would have been entirely acceptable in Europe. He has, however, declined to serve.

Coolidge was presented with two rings this morning by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts
on behalf of a rake maker of Tyringham, Mass. Thanking Treadway for the rings, the President said it reminded him of "days gone by." Turning to newspaper men standing nearby, he added:

COURT FIXES HENKE'S BAIL AT $20,000

Attorney Says the Required
Bond for Alleged Slayer Will Be Furnished Today.

Circuit Judge McElhinney at Clayton today decided that Harry
A. Henke, charged with the murder of his wife, Marie, in their home in Richmond Heights, July 11, is entitled to bail and fixed his bond at $20,000.

Eugene McMahon, attorney for Henke, said he would have the required bond furnished today so that Henke can be released from jail, where he has been confined for about a month, following a Coroner's inquest and a preliminary hearing, at both of which he was ordered held without bail for the crime.

Another hearing, on a motion for bail, was held before Judge McEl-hinney Saturday, and subsequently the court read the transcript of testimony at the inquest and the preliminary hearing.

"Although the evidence against Henke is strongly presumptive," said Judge McElhinney today, "it is not strong enough to deny bail."

Mrs. Henke, 34 years old, a clerk in the office of the Standard Oil Co., in the Syndicate Trust Building, was found dead in bed from fracture of the skull, inflicted with a pipe wrench that belonged to the family.

The body was discovered at 8 p.
m. by her stepfather, Joseph Tosi,
who had returned home from work.
Henke got home from work a half hour later and was informed of the crime. He said his wife told him that morning she was indisposed and would not go to work that day. She was in bed when he left. Henke said, and was to have telephoned him later in the day concerning a visit to friends that night. He said he looked after her until she was asleep.

When Tosi got home that evening the back door was open, but there was no evidence of a forced entrance there nor in any part of the house. The room where the body was found had been disordered or ransacked, but nothing had been stolen.

Bloodstained garments that had been washed out and were said to have belonged to Henke were found in the house after the murder, and another thing that directed suspicion at Henke was an admission by him of a love affair
with another woman.

Troops Withdraw From

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Aug. 18.—Premier Herriot came back from London today like a conquering hero. At the Gare St. Lazare he was cheered as no Premier has been cheered for years by a crowd of many thousands.

The trains which bore the head of the Government back home after his long and arduous work at the international conference pulled into the station at 1:10 o'clock this evening, but it took Herriot 15 minutes to get through to the car
for which he was waiting for him.

And when the automobile had started it had to work its way through streets jammed with the Premier's enthusiastic admirers, while four policemen, standing on each running board, were forced to push away those who wanted to jump into the car.

By the Associated Press.
STRASBOURG, Alsace, Aug. 18.—
French troops began their evacuation of Offenburg and Appen-weier this morning and it was expected they would be entirely out of the two German towns some time tonight.

An official announcement said
the evacuation of the two Baden towns was due to the recent resumption of international train services between Paris and Stras-sbourg and Paris and Prague, the suspension of which on the German section of the line caused the compensation as a penalty in February, 1923.

The evacuation attracted little notice among the townsfolk as the German authorities had been actually in complete civil control for some time. However, the "Angels" and the "Three Queens" bear gardens are busy preparing for his crowds tonight.

Paris, Aug. 18.—The London accord seems certain of acceptance
by the French Chamber and Senate, Premier Herriot's bitter enemies admit he has France behind him. His credit is higher than it ever has been, and, although he went further than Pol-sainville said he dared to go, it is evident that Polsainville cannot swing
the Senate against him.

Only the failure of the German Reloching to pass laws ratifying
the expert plan could bring about a vote of lack of confidence in the French Parliament. Even Herriot's unrelenting critics, Leon Roelling, says that Polsainville cannot "break"
him. In Intrigue, Roelling writes:

"Polsainville went wrong when he said Herriot could only act at London as if he were Polsainville, with Polsainville's policy."
But Le Temps, which represents the trade union, expresses the prevailing opinion:

"The agreement is reached, although the worm for the advantages of peace, whether Matignon or Communism."
Premier Has Powerful Backing.
The parties and provincial newspapers, as a whole, now support Herriot. Even the newspapers which have been neutral or hostile are denouncing the accord today.

From the physical evidence and several notes which Jeninas had scrawled, it was evident he had shot his wife and then killed himself. Her body was in a chair with her head resting on her arms at the kitchen table, a bullet wound in the forehead. The husband's body lay in the doorway and a 22-caliber revolver with two empty shells lay beside him.

On the table under a pitcher half-filled with home-brewed beer was a hastily-written note in which Jeninas left his property to his brother, John Jeninas, of San Francisco. A note to the brother, in the dead man's pocket, explained that he had killed his wife and himself. "I had to kill her and myself because there was no other way to get by," it said.

Other notes in Jeninas' hand were found in the adjoining bedroom. One to a woman friend said, "Gussie went and married another man," and another to a fellow workman asked that he "take care of McDonald." Neither has been explained. Jeninas was employed at the Crumley-Martin Manufacturing Co. as "Tony Johnson." He had adopted the simpler name for convenience.

Neighbors said the couple had occupied the flat for about a month and frequently quarreled.

"regular routes" he was asked, but the question was not clear and he couldn't answer.

"Well, I can't make it any clearer," said Darrow.

"Would you consider paranoid or psychotic personality a pathological condition?" he asked. "That depends upon how you use the term pathological," said Dr. Singer.

"The witness said that psychotic personality is not well balanced. His chief characteristic," the doctor explained, "is that he lives chiefly in the moment without relation to the future or the past."

"Is that due to physical conditions?" pursued Darrow. "Not so far as I know."

Living in the Moment.
Conditions which produce a psychotic personality are not the same, Dr. Singer said. He modified this by saying there was a relationship between the psychopathic personality and the psychosis that might develop from it.

"How do you detect psychopathic personality?" asked Darrow. "By studying how he behaves. The chief characteristic is his living in the moment."

"Do you study psychotics?" "By the same method," he replied. "You give a good deal of space in your book to psychopathic cases, don't you?" asked Darrow. "Yes, sir."

"Did you ever study insanity?" "Yes, sir."

"Is memory good in paranoid personality?" "Yes, sir."

Then the questioner drew out an opinion that "Everyday there is a certain amount of paranoid personality."

"Too said phantasies are not a form of insanity, did you not?" "No, sir, I did not say that."

"Are they signs of insanity?" "Yes, sir, some times."

Hallucinations.
Other signs of insanity were discussed as hallucinations. "The difference between delusions and hallucinations," explained Dr. Singer, "is that people may develop delusions to explain hallucinations they experience. Hallucinations is a sense experience which does not correspond with facts."

"So if a boy, passing along the street, believes he is a leader of a gang of robbers and talks to them, giving them orders and directing their actions, he is under an hallucination, isn't it?" asked Dr. Singer. "If he has lost the reality, he has," was the reply.

Dr. Singer then questioned Dr. Singer about the parts of the body that caused emotion and if any parts were more responsible for emotions than others. He asked several times if the emotions said intellect could be separated but it was only after considerable questioning that the witness answered that they could not be separated.

Steam Moves Wheels.
"Emotions represent the steam that makes the wheels go round," illustrated Dr. Singer. The witness agreed with Darrow that intellect was a newer biological development than the emotions.

"Emotions are the guiding force of life," suggested Darrow. "Yes, sir, in a sense."

"A child is born only with emotions and eats and sleeps without thought?" "Yes, sir, he has no intellect at that stage."

"And he cannot distinguish between right and wrong?" "Naturally not, as he has no intelligence," agreed Dr. Singer.

"They agreed further on the purpose of character training and education, then switched back to endocrine glands."

Dr. Singer said there had been study of these ductless psychological puzzles for perhaps a hundred years but the results had become more or less definite only recently. They agreed that not much is known about these glands and Dr. Singer said their functions were not certain.

"They discharge into the blood system?" asked Darrow. "Yes, or perhaps some of them discharge into that other system, the lymphatic, of which we know little," expounded the doctor.

He was asked whether there was any question but that "Some of the endocrine glands are quite active under emotion." The doctor explained that it was "extremely probable" that under certain emotions glands become active.

"If we knew we would know," Dr. Singer said. "Emotion is not simply a state of mind; it is evidently not primarily a state of the body. Emotion includes automatic preparation of the body. The regulatory system and endocrine glands are intimately concerned in it," Darrow read out of Dr. Singer's book.

"Now Doctor, the more a man tries to study human conduct and the manifold actions of the human machine, the more he realizes that they cannot all be accounted for," asked Darrow. "Assuredly," said Dr. Singer.

"And if we knew all about these things we could account for actions?" pursued the attorney. "That is a nice phantasy," rejoined the witness. "It is one of the things we dream about. If we knew all, we would know all, of course."

The witness said he expected to receive remuneration but had no definite agreement.

Schizophrenic Again.
Under re-direct examination, Milton Smith, assistant State attorney, asked the witness further about "schizophrenia" or "split personality." He then brought out that Darrow was present Monday, June 2, when the defendants were in the State's attorney's office and the defense counsel had not objected to any of the questions asked at that time.

The subject drew from Crowe the comment that while "it might be a violation of constitutional rights to question a suspect charged with crime," he was going to follow that practice as long as he was State's attorney. Darrow remarked that such a sentiment did not speak well for a community and that "Mr. Crowe might be able to get away with it" in the coming election but if he did it would be no credit to the county. Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.

"A man charged with crime is entitled to every protection that the law affords and his constitutional rights should not be violated with impunity," exclaimed Darrow. "Well, gentlemen," interposed Judge Caverly, "you will have plenty of opportunity to argue later."

The defense then brought up the story of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, trying to bring out the question of split personality. Dr. Singer said: "Practically everybody has the experience of having some thought forced onto him by some unknown power which he is unable to get rid of."

Court then adjourned for the noon recess.

HAD SHOW-GIRL WIFE ARRESTED TO 'PROTECT SELF'

Millard Goldsmith, 44, Says
He Wants to Safeguard
Estate Against Possible Claims.

ACTRESS HELD ON BIGAMY CHARGE

Woman Taken in Custody
in New York Lays Situation
to Husband's "Spite Work."

"It was a case of pure loneliness on my part when I married her before I had known her 10 days, and now her arrest in New York on the bigamy charge is not spite work, as she asserts, but is merely the result of steps I am taking to protect myself and estate against possible future claims."

Thus Millard Goldsmith, 44 years old, of 535 Clara avenue, sales manager for the Barnes-Crosby Co., was arrested in New York on charges of "suspicion of bigamy."

Held in $3000 Bail.
New York dispatches state that Mrs. Weir-Goldsmith told the court, when she was held in $3000 bail yesterday that she left Goldsmith "because of unbearable treatment."

She said she told him before their marriage that when she was married here to Berl Weir of Okmulgee, Ok., who deserted her a short time after-ward, Weir represented himself as a United States sailor, she said, and later she received word from the Navy Department that he had been killed.

Goldsmith denied she ever informed him of her previous marriage. "I was dumfounded when I learned she had been married before," he said. "Although she was using the name 'Virginia Lee' when I met her at a party held in my club, I was not aware of her former marriage."

Goldsmith said that when he met her she was the daughter of a prominent St. Louis jurist, but was estranged from her family and living at a hotel in New York.

Says She Proposed.
"I didn't investigate her story, because of the estrangement angle. The monotony of hotel life was on my mind and I was prepared to get time later that we get married," she really did the proposing—we went to Clayton and were married by a Justice of the Peace."

Goldsmith declared his treatment of her always had been excellent, saying, "I lavished my money and affection on her in every way."

Last April, however, she disappeared. Goldsmith said that he had been living in the Coronado Hotel. He engaged private detectives, who traced her to Hot Springs, Ark., and then to New York, Goldsmith asserted. He said he returned to him, but left again without cause, he said, on July 30.

It was then, while trying to trace her again, that he first learned of her previous marriage. He said he had been unable to find any record of her death. He then placed the case in an attorney's hands, with a view to annulment proceedings, and the arrest in New York was made on the basis of the St. Louis County authorities.

The New York dispatch states that Mrs. Weir-Goldsmith described herself as a member of the Follies and as a former motion picture actress. Goldsmith said that, while he believed she had been a chorus girl in various shows, she never had been in either the Follies or the movies.

Police records here show that Mrs. Weir complained, on Jan. 5, 1918, that Berl Weir, whom she married on Christmas eve in 1917, deserted her a week later. She said Weir represented himself as on recruiting duty with the naval office here, but officers there had no record of the man.

Sheriff William will apply for extradition papers and go to New York to bring Mrs. Goldsmith to Clayton.

Basest Rumor Leopold Ended.
Yesterday a baseless but persistent rumor that Leopold had ended his life took crowds of curious people to the county jail. Ward Westbrook ridiculed the possibility, although he admitted that the guard had been doubled. He related this portion of the confession in an undertone, inaudible six feet away. When the attorneys heard that the police had known who stabbed him, but would not divulge his assailant's name. Two men who were customers in the saloon were questioned by the police, but they could throw no light on the affair.

Christie Verdon, 22 years old, a laborer, of 3521 North Eleventh street, was injured fatally when an automobile truck, in which he was riding with seven other men, ran into a Page car at Broadway and Washington avenue at 6:20 p. m. yesterday. Verdon, who suffered a fracture of the skull and deep laceration of the head, died at city hospital 20 minutes later.

Verdon's family understood that he and six companions had joined the driver of the truck, who was returning from a country picnic, for a ride through the city to his garage. The driver was Charles Scheuffer, 21, of 3521 North Tenth street. The truck belonged to his employers, Parks & Bohne, Inc., 3124 Washington boulevard.

The truck was being driven south in Broadway. A Page car west-bound in Washington avenue forced the driver to turn sharply to the right in an effort to avoid collision. However, the truck smashed against the side of the car and, skidding, was overturned.

All the surviving occupants of the truck were detained by the police as coroner's witnesses. Two at city hospital, are John Hadden, 28, of 824 Salisbury street, who has a severe shoulder laceration, and Oliver Heever, 24, of 3621 North Eleventh street, who had a fractured jaw and lacerated lip. Heaver had hastened to his home after the accident, where he was taken there by police.

The others were detained at the Carr Street Police Station, after treatment for minor injuries. They are, besides Scheuffer: Edward Albert, 27, of 1518 Salisbury street; George Howell, 26, of 1119 North Park place, and Raymond Parks, 20, of 2155 Blenden place.

Two Girls Struck by Auto: Driver Is Arrested.
Miss Helen Lewis, 16 years old, and Miss Thelma Shannon, 16, of 1329A Park avenue, were hit by the automobile of Anton Gladish, 2632 E. 12th street, as they crossed Twelfth street at Chouteau avenue at 10 a. m. today. They were treated at city hospital for lacerations and bruises. Arrested, Gladish said he was driving north when the girls jumped in front of his machine to avoid another.

Six persons were injured in automobile accidents last night. A machine struck Mrs. Katherine McNally, 28 years old, of 5838A Easton avenue, when crossing Easton avenue at Academy street, and she suffered a fracture of the right hip. Internal injuries and numerous lacerations. Charles Winkelmeyer, 25, of 2709A Chippewa street, crossing Gravois avenue at Winnebago street, was struck by a machine, suffering a fracture of the skull and leg. He is 915 Fillmore street, and Joseph Forstall, 37, of 3939 Pennsylvania avenue, were thrown from a car when it struck a pile of brick and mortar in front of 4448 Nebraska avenue. Forstall suffered various lacerations and diaphragm wounds.

Victor C. Utterback, 32, a school teacher, of 317 West Essex avenue, was accompanied by his wife and child, alighted from a Grand car at 1025 North Grand boulevard, and was struck by an automobile, the driver of which did not remain at the scene. He suffered a fracture of the right hip. The police reported they learned the machine was driven by William Henry, 41, restaurant keeper, of 4269 San Francisco avenue, whom they arrested at home. He made no statement.

L. D. Wagner, 49, of 6447 West Park avenue, suffered a fracture of the right leg and bruises when he was thrown from his automobile in a collision on the Manchester road west of Pond, St. Louis County.

A. William Heintz, 21 years old, of 5447 Queens avenue, railroad teller at Boatmen's Bank, was killed instantly when Wabash passenger train No. 12, bound for Chicago, struck his touring car at Marcus avenue and the Terminal belt line at 10 o'clock last night.

Yesterday was the first day of his vacation. He had spent the afternoon and evening visiting a fellow bank employee, and was returning home when the accident occurred.

The train, which was brought to a stop within 25 feet, knocked the machine into the ditch southeast of the intersection and threw Heintz against the curb at the southeast corner. A passing physician pronounced Heintz dead.

The engineer, Harry Stigall, 60, of Decatur, Ill., said he had blown his whistle for the crossing and didn't see the machine till the train was almost upon it.

Samuel Keller, 5114 McKinsick avenue, the crossing watchman, said that the train was on the south pair going down slower than the north pair. Heintz, he said, drove on the tracks from the south and later south gates were lowered and was stopped by the closed ones on the north side, then started to back off the tracks. Keller said it appeared to him that the machine rolled down grade again onto the rails, and that possibly the driver had tried to beat the train.

Melbourne Mauch, 20, of 4457 San Francisco avenue, who was driving north in Marcus avenue a short distance behind Heintz, said the north gates were down and the train was about 100 feet from the crossing, while the Heintz car was moving slowly across the track. Mauch declared that Heintz, struck, was trying to get out of the car or the left or right side, which was nearest the train.

Mauch, who identified Heintz, said that later, when the ambulance arrived, the apparatus for raising the south gates was out of work, and the gates had to be pushed up by hand.

Heintz resided with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Heintz, a sister, Catherine, and brother, Charles.

CRIMINAL CHARGE AGAINST DRIVER FOR DEATH OF MAN

A coroner's verdict of criminal negligence was returned today against Joseph Sansone, 23 years old, of 3975 Evans avenue, in the case of Joseph B. Olan, 72, of 1246 Aubert avenue, who died Friday of injuries sustained last Tuesday when struck by an automobile.

Sansone and two companions in his car—Andrew Carafa, 1017 North Eleventh street, and James Pusztari, 926 Washington street—testified that Olan, attempting to cross Page boulevard near Euclid avenue, became confused by another car and stepped back in front of Sansone's.

The testimony had been completed, when Sgt. James Collins stepped forward and announced he wished to testify. He told of tracing the car which struck Olan to its owner, a negro, and learning from her that it had been sent to Sansone's shop for repairs. Collins said Sansone told him he had not surrendered to the police after the collision because his wife, also riding in the car, was "nervous" and wanted to be taken home.

JEWELRY TAKEN FROM
BODY OF MRS. MORS

$5000 in Gems Missing, Affidavit of Ex-Husband's Attorneys Alleges.

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—Jewelry valued at $5000 were taken from the body of Mrs. Theresa W. Mors after she died with a bullet found in her brain last Tuesday night, attorneys for her husband, Albert A. Mors, announced today. Kid McCoy, former pugilist, is held in the case on a charge of suspicion of murder.

The lawyers made their statement as they prepared to file Mrs. Mors' will for probate. This document, dated Aug. 4, 1921, drawn in New York, leaves the entire estate to "My Beloved husband," Albert A. Mors.

A coincidence in the case is that one of the witnesses to the will was Mrs. Ann Schapp, one of 3 persons wounded by McCoy in his pistol orgy in the Westlake district last Wednesday.

Mrs. Schapp, police investigators say, had been trying to reconcile Mors and his divorced wife, Theresa, who prior to her death was living with McCoy, under an assumed name.

Mrs. Mors' possessions were valued by Mors at $25,000 while the value of the remainder of her estate, including jewelry, antiques and furniture, was set at approximately $100,000.

BABY FOUNDLING PUZZLES HOSPITAL WELFARE BOARD

Kansas City Woman Advertised for Child, but Her Husband Objected.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 18.—The welfare board at the General Hospital met today to rule upon the fate of a foundling, 3 days old. The mother does not want the child, but another woman does, and the father, A. K. Ruf, has objected, and the welfare board was at a loss for a decision.

Herman Bielefeld, 70, was married four years ago to a 29-year-old girl. One child was born 14 months ago, and the other day another child arrived. The aged father had not long to live, and the Bielefelds advertised for someone to adopt the infant. Mrs. Ruf answered the advertisement, but, knowing her husband would object, arranged to have the Bielefelds leave the child on the porch, as though it were a foundling.

A taxicab driver told of taking an aged man, a young woman and a baby to the Ruf address. When police arrived the Rufs were in a wrangle over admittance of the child. The Rufs already have three children and the father does not want another.

The baby was taken to the General Hospital, where the welfare board will decide its future home.

COOLIDGE AND DAVIS ASSAILED BY FOSTER

Both "Agents of Wall Street," Workers' Party Candidate
Declares.

By the Associated Press.
YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 18.—William Z. Foster, Workers' party candidate for President, opening the first election campaign waged by the Communists in America, in an address here yesterday, denounced both President Coolidge and John W. Davis as "agents of Wall Street."

Of Coolidge he said: "His servility in bowing to the wishes of New England capitalism, by using the office of Governor of Massachusetts to crush the Boston police strike of 1919, won for him the first sign of real recognition, not alone from the capitalists of New England, but Wall Street itself, 'that Coolidge was a man after its own heart.'"

The Communist candidate said of Davis: "He is a Morgan lawyer, picked by the house of Morgan to be their successor to Elihu Root. Davis hails from West Virginia, the land of open shop companies. He has accepted a big fee from these companies, so that his sympathies lie close to home. While he was Ambassador to England he served in good stead the interests of United States Steel, Standard Oil, Bell Telephone and the Chicago packers."

Assails La Follette's Plan

Discussing what he declared as La Follette's plan of "purifying" the Government and breaking up the trusts, Foster declared that: "The Socialist, the petty bourgeois, the A. P. of L. aristocracy, will prove to be the last bulwark of capitalism. When the big capitalist parties are no longer able to delude the masses and to mobilize them for political action against their own interests, then the La Follettes and the Magnus Johnsons will be at hand with their policy of reforming the capitalist system to suit their own middle class desires and to prevent the workers from taking effective revolutionary action."

Foster attacked the efforts of the A. P. of L. in trying to organize, "by its old Gompers methods, the modern steel industry."

He said the "great steel plants of America must be nationalized by a workers' and farmers' government and operated for the benefit of the producers as a whole. Sam Gompers has about run his course. What is left of his type of craft unions must be amalgamated into international unions and the great basic industries organized."

"The Workers' party, while it recognized immediate needs of workers, emphasizes the fact that the only permanent solution of robbery and exploitation of the workers will come when we abolish completely the present system of capitalism."

NAVAL RESERVE MEMBERS FIGHT FIRE ON SUBCHASER

Blaze Starts While Aviation Division Prepares to Embark for Cruise on River.

Twenty members of the Aviation Division of the Fourth Regiment, Naval Reserve, had an opportunity to demonstrate their military efficiency when fire broke out in the engine room of Subchaser 43 as they prepared to embark from the Naval Reserve dock at Ferry street for a cruise on the Mississippi at 9:30 a. m. yesterday.

Sparks which issued from the backfire of the engine as it was started, ignited fumes from gasoline which had seeped into the bilge, and the engine room burst into flames. Prompt and concerted action by the crew with fire extinguishers put out the blaze within three minutes, before it could reach the gasoline tanks forward of the engine room, and when a Fire Department company arrived the excitement was over. Ensign J. F. Fisher said there was several hundred dollars damage to storage batteries and paint.

STABBED 19 TIMES IN BRAWL IN AUTO

Steven Gustin, 25, Found After Fight in Which Woman Figured Is Quelled.

Four men and a woman fighting in and around a parked automobile at Michigan and Loughborough avenues, at 1:30 a. m. yesterday, attracted the attention of Probationary Patrolman Wilson, who tried to arrest all five, but got only two men, the others escaping on foot.

The two prisoners—Foster E. Kramer, 2627 Geyer avenue, and Ralph Davidson, 3401 Vista avenue—were charged with peace disturbance and released on bonds. Both suffered minor cuts and bruises.

When everything seemed quiet again, police were summoned to 5704 Minnesota avenue, in front of which Steven Gustin, 25, of 1727 Waverly place, was lying, with 19 stab wounds. He said his roommate, Melvin Major, 24, had stabbed him, but added he would not prosecute. Gustin is in city hospital in serious condition.

Police learned that Gustin, Major, Kramer and Davidson and a girl known as Daisy had made a round of county roadhouses Saturday night and then engaged in the brawl which Patrolman Wilson interrupted. Gustin and Major, separated in their flight from the girl, renewed the quarrel in an automobile parked near where Gustin later was found. Major fled after stabbing Gustin, but was arrested and confessed.

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 18.—The

for governor ending next Saturday with the runoff primary probably will be a deciding factor in whether

Lee will regard his nomination as
"empty honor," many Republican

IF MRS. FERGUSON WINSThomas P. Lee Refuses to Reconsider Decision

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo.,
Aug. 18.—Thomas P. Lee of Houston, Tex., today refused to reconsider his declaration of the Republican nomination for the governorship of Texas following an interchange of telegrams with Republican leaders over protests made on a message he sent former Governor James Ferguson, expressing the hope that the latter's capture the Democratic nomination

DALLAS, Tex., Aug. 18.—The

gram from Lee to James E. Ferguson, expressing a hope that Mrs.
Ferguson will be the Democratic nominee and saying that if she is Lee will regard his nomination as
"empty honor," many Republican leaders have suggested that Lee withdraw, and he said that if he ends he is not in harmony with the leaders who will vote for him.When, on return from

TRIES TO KILL HIMSELFAlleged Slayer of Brother-in-Law
Opens Vein in Arm With a Safety Pin.By the Associated Press.
SOMERVILLE, Mass., Aug. 18.— Dr. Raymond D. Thierly, under arrest at the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston, charged with the murder of his brother-in-law, David M. Noble, in this city
Aug. 8, attempted to commit suicide during the night by opening a vein in his forearm with a safety pin.Early today a nurse heard him groaning and called a doctor, who made an immediate blood transfusion from a special policeman at the hospital. The belief was expressed at the hospital that Thierly, although in a much weakened condition, would survive.Assistant District Attorney Bun-nell of Middlesex County said that Thierly had asserted that the vein was opened with a safety razor blade which he concealed yesterday. No blade was found in the room, however, and the authorities are satisfied that a pin discovered in the bed was used.

POWER OF A
VOTERS IN ESTIMATECampaign to Bring Homes of 1920 A Factor in

BY S. H.

By Mail

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—State that there are about 7,000 United States, who may be eligible to vote.

To use exact figures, the who, being in 1920 of the age living and maintaining legal residence in the United States, from this gross total of 7,000 there are certain deductions to be made; and, likewise, total there are certain offsets to be added.

For example, some of the persons of the ages named are foreign birth and are not yet naturalized citizens, and there is a deduction on that score. On the other hand, of those over 21 years of age and over 1920, there were likewise foreign born nonvoters who have been naturalized since 1920. It is doubtful if there is a deduction to be made on the basis of foreign birth.

Again, at first glance, it appears necessary to make a deduction on account of those who reach 21 in 1924 but not enough in the year to register in November. But here we have an offset in the number who likewise in 1924 do not reach their majority for election, and are to be added to the list of new voters in 1924.

Case of Negroes. Doubtless some reduction in the number of new voters will be made on account of the census figures of 1920 on account of sickness and death. Yet, it is plainly that for every loss of this there are gains to be counted.

Some sources may be here enumerated. Take, for example, the women. In 1920 women cast their votes in a presidential election. Although equal suffrage was not then a reality, a majority of the women of a country, it is known that, was a more or less active in that opposed suffrage, and lost a still larger number who, indifferent. On the whole, the little question that a million more women, apparently a million, were stay-at-home in 1920, and many of these during the past four years have been turned to the idea that they have a duty to their country in the box, and so will join the ranks of new voters in the 1924 election. The gains in the woman vote will doubtless offset all deductions made on other sources, 7,000,000 total.

Gain in Veterans' Vote

It is evident, also, that the going to be a fairly large increase in the vote of young men of scores. First, take the boys coming home from the War. Many of them did not turn to the home where the legal residents, but sought employment in industrial centers and there throughout the country. In their new locations, they have in 1920 the necessary year's legal residence in the of their new allegiance to them for registration and, in 1924, the vast number of the 4,000,000 veterans of the War will be settled in States they may register and vote. Then, again, all conditions caused an immigration of young people and 24 from the farms to cities, where, in 1920, they had not resided long enough to qualify for election. A large percentage of such young people the farm have by this time moved to their city locations and are to be added to the list of voters for the 1924 election.

All factors considered, there, it is likely that the total of 7,000,000 as the size of the army of first-time presidential voters is below rather than above mark. An estimate of 7,000,000 might even be given as a conservative. If the nation-wide

LA FOLLETTE'S DIFFICULTY.

LA FOLLETTE'S DIFFICULTY.

The difficulty of the La Follette cause in attempting to serve the special interests of the farmer and the worker at the same time is obvious on its face. As hitherto pointed out by the Post-Dispatch, the farmer wants low freight rates and low-priced manufactured articles while labor demands high wages and the abolition of the Railroad Labor Board, both of which ultimately must tend to support high rail rates and high prices.

It has remained, however, for Franklin Ream, secretary of the American Economic Institute of Chicago, to turn upon this clash of interests the pitiless analysis of the record. He finds that the supporters of labor's favorite measure, the Howell-Barkley bill, in the last Congress differed considerably from the roll of those who voted for the farmers' favorite measure, the McNary-Haugen bill.

To make matters worse the railway labor leaders, failing to appreciate the delicate position of their presidential candidate, issued a "black list" of 40 Congressmen in eight states in which August primaries were to be held. The "black list" included all who had voted against the Howell-Barkley bill. This list included 17 who had voted for the farmers' McNary-Haugen bill. Of the 52 Congressmen endorsed for reelection 20 had voted against the farmers' bill.

As attested in these congressional votes the special interests of the farmers and the workers are not identical. Special interests, by their very definition, apply only to special groups. Government should serve no special or privileged interests. Its legitimate field belongs only to the general welfare. La Follette, assuming the special interest causes of both farmer and worker, is confronted with difficulties similar to those of Coolidge, who is attempting to serve the special interests of the tariff barons while, at the same time, professing to serve the common interest of the consumers.

August is doing well in keeping cool with Coolidge.

What are the Public Safety Department and the building inspectors going to do about the hundreds of old buildings in St. Louis, many of which may be in as dangerous a condition as the one which fell without warning at Twelfth and Pine streets on Friday? With the continuous vibration of our new heavy street cars and the heavy busses, more thorough inspection is needed than ever before. And this inspection should not merely result in the condemnation of buildings found to be actually in danger of falling, but in orders to owners of old buildings, where the need is shown, to strengthen their buildings, with the penalty of having them closed for disobedience. The public safety is a sufficient reason for this use of the city's police power.

In making inspection, walls should be plumbed, floors tried with the level, mortar tested for strength. Poor mortar deteriorates until it has no binding power. A slight lean from the horizontal may increase rapidly, under the strain and vibration, until a wall may become unsafe in a few hours. Walls can be tied with iron rods and braces. Many devices known to builders can be used for strengthening buildings. A mere cursory survey, by the unaided eye, done in a hurry, is no proper inspection.

Primarily, of course, owners of buildings are the responsible parties, but there is official responsibility, too. The Department of Public Safety, with its staff of building inspectors, is the public's chief safeguard against the danger from falling buildings. Inspectors who do not inspect—and the collapse of buildings is sufficient proof of neglect—should be replaced with others who will perform this indispensable duty. Let the Building Commissioner see to it that inspectors inspect.

Lincoln, Neb., has formerly been the scene of notification ceremonies involving the Bryan family, but somehow, they haven't meant anything.

SPEAKING OF HOGS.

SPEAKING OF HOGS.

See where a $25,000 prize hog disappeared from a county fair in Illinois the other day. No doubt he'll soon be starting out of the trail of the Joroseme swine.

A $500 reward is offered for the recovery of his pigish majesty. Which is a jakey opportunity for somebody with a nose for livestock to bring home the bacon.

Hogs is hogs. Once a hog, always a hog. Ask your landlord. He'll blush.

Hogs may come and hogs may go—but none of the profits will ever settle down into the pockets of the hog-raiser.

Bob Le Follette took in all of their grunts and pitched right into his presidential campaign. It's more than certain that Bob will hog the entire farmer vote.

However, a farm simply can't be a farm without a couple of hogs jolling around—not meaning, of course, the ones who fliver down from the city for the purpose of sponging on the bush folks for a while.

But if they're stamper enough to swoop down without bringing some canned grub and other supplies along, it's a sure cinch

In fact, one hay-pitcher's family purposely limited themselves to only one cup of coffee per meal just so there would be enough left in the pot to pour into the flivver and keep it a-going.

Now, coffee is bound to make one nervous. After a couple of weeks of this, the Michigan butter churner got so nervous it shook like a young Hawaiian earthquake on the slightest provocation.

If only the creator of this Detroit coal bucket could have seen what it finally degenerated into, he'd blush to his ear lobes and blurt out: "Never again!"

THEODORE TRILSEY.

Now that one of the railroads is to run a ladies' smoking car between St. Louis and Chicago, probably a good many people over in Illinois whose grandmothers smoked pipes are prepared to see shocking things through the car windows.

GOOD NEWS IF THE

From the New Orleans Free Press

From the New Orleans Times-Picayune.

ACCORDING to an official statement from Washington, the presidential campaign will not reach an "all-out" stage until September. Both the Democratic and Republican committees, it is said, have not in their cash boxes as much as they would wish. They are therefore, wherever it is possible, "digging in" for the forthcoming campaign. They must wait for the campaign money to flow in and after that campaign plans to the measure of the receipts. It is therefore predicted that campaign leaders of both parties will vote the next six weeks or so in the "quiet zone"—while La Follette and Wheeler are in the "hot zone." In the meantime, in their turn, we are told, is when the Democrats will begin to dig in, instead before plunging into the campaign.

news is excellent, if true. The warm enough without the ad-hoc red-hot political campaign. The political failure will weaken the summer rest from the heat after the long play in Congress and June conventions. With the coming of weather, when the crops are away, most of us will be in better a siege of political enmity. For candidates can state their support not only thoroughly but also in the 40 days beginning with the campaign. The meeting is strict or moderated all around called "late start" which is enough for all intelligent people much the better.

THE RADIO WERNE

THE RADIO WEBSTER

From the New York Herald-Tribune:
No doubt sentiment rather than commercial interest prompts the Association of Organists to suggest employment of the highest talents to cast wedding marches for the rural brides. Likely enough many organists knew by experience that "and Mendelssohn are tortured in hamlets and have been sad women rendering, not to say reading, Promise Me." For the sake of the

But they propose that great joy at great organs shall play the notes twice a day that wedding parties may be more adequately satisfied adequately. While they say good turn their plan may come to unhappiness. Their assumption of joy over the local musicians is refuted, but the latter will be more than amply satisfied to give them great deal of pleasure. The specialists in many a community of consideration, not lightly bowed aside by the radio. If the conduct of weddings is followed by the ceremony, the ceremony is constant. The most successful musician may establish themselves at the radio. A radio Gretta Green is as good as a radio. The wireless marriage is a new novelty were long have been known.

The action was made to start in France, the court of Louis XV, where impetuous young Duke de Guise falls in love with Henriette. On her arrival at the court, she arouses the wrath of Mme. de Padoue, the court favorite. The suspense of the book is retained in the screen version as the audience is taken into all the secrets. PITY the poor neglected. One reason she should be is that she has been so egg-headed overworked in the film. Here she is again—three of fact—in "Single Wives," the feature at the Grand Central Lyric Skydome. In this the wives are portrayed by Kathlyn Williams, Thelma Houston, and Patricia Griffith. Her husband's hands are Milton Sills, New Marshall and John Saxon.

Miss Griffith has the role who she demands all of her husband's time, though it really be embarrassing if he could be on her during business and contemplate the cake and human sponges with she beguiles her loneliness.

Miss Williams plays the part of this dissatisfied wife. It is a different grievance. Her husband is a gay old dog who does not give his time to business—has been incultured with the best. He has a moon vision of the hangings and galleys his daughter-in-law's lines. Phyllis Haver is a woman with a third type of cow. Her husband is too stodgy a matter of fact. She tries to "up" him by inducing him to go to the opera, to have a good time, and when he does she throws a fit. Men and out through the action—some but polished home—none other than Lou T. He undertakes to take advantage of the dissatisfied wife at home, but there is a sudden awakening all round and the is foiled.

In the cast also are Novak and Pauline Starke, a highly melodramatic story of an international gang of villains kidnap beautiful girls and then across the border to be in service as dancers and ruses in Mexican "hell holes" where a Secret Service properly tagged as the star audience won't have any of it. Valentino's "Monsieur Beaucaire," a Romantic Spectacle—"Single Wives," "Another Scandal," "Missing Daughters" on View.

RUDOLPH VALENTINO makes an impressive return to the screen in "Monsieur Beaucaire," at the Missouri Theater. With him in this rather free adaptation of both Tarkington's fine story are Bobe Daniels, Doris Kenyon, Lois Wilson, Paulette Goddard and Lowell Sherman, all with powdered wigs and patches and in eighteenth century costumes of extreme richness and magnificence. Valentino himself wears a beaming succession of court outfits, working up to a sartorial climax when he steps out of his assumed role of a barber and into his rightful place as a Prince of the royal house of France.

Tarkington's novelette has undergone many changes in the screening process. The action has been made to start in France, at the court of Louis XV, where the mysterious young Duke de Charville falls in love with Henriette, a new arrival at the court, and thus begins the wrath of Mrs. Pompadour, the court favorite. None of the suspense of the book is retained in the screen version. The action is taken into all the scenes. It knows from the start the real identity of the French barber in Bath, England, and with little suspense of wit it can forecast the mobbing of the barber by Lady Mary and the young Duke's ultimate return to his true love in France.

Valentino is a delight to his following in this costume drama. The costumes set off his looks to his best advantage and he has opportunities to show his qualities as a screen maker, swordsman and actor. The photography is unusual in quality. In the early stages of the picture, but there are some fine shots in the later action, especially the garden scenes at Bath. And all the close-ups of Valentino are perfect, so what more could one ask?

Too Many Lonely Wives.

THE poor neglected wife of one reason she should be pitied is that she has been so egregiously overworked in the film drama. It is again—three of her in "Single Wives," the week's feature at the Grand Central and Lyric Skydome. In this instance the wives are portrayed by Corinne Griffith, Kathlyn Williams and Phyllis Haver. The respective husbands are Milton Sills, Henry B. Walthall and John Patrick.

Corinne Griffith has the role of a wife who demands all of her husband's time, though it really would be embarrassing if he could drop her during business hours and contemplate the cake and human sponges with whom she beguiles her loneliness. Miss Williams plays the mother of this disaffected wife. She has a different grievance. Her husband is a gay old fellow who doesn't devote his time to business but has been inducted with the jazz band. He makes her companion of the hangover and the headache. His daughter-in-law's loneliness. Phyllis Haver is a wife with a third type of complaint. Her husband is too staid and matter of fact. She tries to "pep" him up by inducing him to go out and have a good time, and when he does she throws a fit. Moving in and out through the action is a delicious but polished homebreaker—some other than Lou Tellegen. His endeavors to take advantage of the dissatisfaction in all three homes, but there is a sudden moral turning all round and the villain is foiled.

An International Thriller. "THE LOST PERCY," one of the most beautiful of the screen long play in Congress and in the theaters. With the coming of October, when the crops are harvested, most of us will be in better shape for political oratory. Parties can be held, and the respective sides can state their respective cases thoroughly but exhaustively with days beginning with September. Campaign outlay is measurably moderated all around by a "rainy start" which is plainly a good thing for all intelligent purposes.

THE RADIO WEDDING. The New York Herald-Tribune has a day that weddings all and throughout the land may be seen adequately. While they seek to turn their plan into a commercial success, their assumption of superiority of the local musicians may be justified by the radio. If the all-day wedding is followed to conclusion, the most successful marriage party will be the one in which the bride and groom wave lengths have not yet been reached.

Letter Carrier as a Hero. "THE CAPTAIN" has a double bill, Johnnie Walker in "The Mailman," and Jack Dempsey, champion heavyweight boxer, in "Winning His Way." Melodrama has an extra inning in both. The captain in this instance gets a good off his route in establishing himself as a hero. The action is about evenly divided between depicting the letter carrier's home life and showing his devotion to duty and his heroism in an emergency. The climax is like a mailman's nightmare. The whole United States fleet, more or less, is called out to thwart a ship robbery headed off by the mailman. Automobiles and airplanes are used in the telling effect. A ship is torpedoed and many other thrilling

Mr. and Mrs. King are building a home in the St. Louis Country Club grounds. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Rutherford Stocker have returned from their honeymoon trip in the East, and will be with Mrs. Stocker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Feldman, in Kingsbury place, temporarily.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Wiegman of 2221 Yale avenue, with their daughters, Mrs. Festus Woodcock and Miss Evelyn Wiegman, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Kirchner and their daughters, Charlotte and Dorothy, departed Friday for a motor trip to New York, Boston, Washington and up into Canada.

Mrs. Frank R. Bigney, 3719 St. Ferdinand terrace, and Miss Julia Cronin have returned from Los Angeles and a six weeks' motor trip through the Pacific Coast region.

Things happen to make this particular mailman's job exciting. Jack Dempsey in his picture starts out as a blacksmith, an honest son of toll who carries a dinner pail in his left hand and a husky punch in his right. Of course, he has pugilistic ambitions. Incidentally he demonstrates his heroism by pulling a boy from in front of a moving train and being almost drowned for his pains. The action leads up to the point where Jack's pugilistic prowess is recognized and he has a chance for a big fight. From then on he is more at home. There are interesting training scenes and the "big fight" has some thrills.

"Another Scandal" at the Kings. The picture at the Kings this week is just what its name says is—"Another Scandal." There is plenty of action, and the plot which seems to indicate that something is about to happen although it never does, quite, and some good acting and photography but the story is not over interesting. The picture comes with nothing very much settled and no one overly satisfied. Lois Wilson is a very pretty flapper wife, Holmes Herbert a husband who is a perfect gentleman, most of the time, and Flora Le Breton, a vampish divorcee, who causes most of the trouble.

There is also an Andy Gump comedy which is very funny.

U.S. SENATOR COLT DIES AT AGE OF 78

Republican Member From Rhode Island Had Been Ill for About Two Weeks.

By the Associated Press.
BRISTOL, R. I., Aug. 18.—United States Senator Le Baron Bradford Colt, Republican, died at 5 o'clock this morning. He had been ill for about two weeks from heart disease and nephritis.

Colt, a resident of Bristol, was born in Dedham, Mass., June 25, 1846. He was graduated from Yale University in 1868 and then from Columbia College Law School. He devoted a year to travel in Europe, and then practiced law in Chicago until 1875, when he transferred his residence to Bristol and practiced law in Providence. He received the A. M. degree from Brown University in 1881, and U. S. D. from Columbia in 1904. Yale in 1905 and Brown in 1914. From 1878 to 1881 he was a member of the Rhode Island General Assembly. In March, 1881, President Garfield made him United States District Judge for Rhode Island, and in July, 1884, President Arthur named him United States Circuit Judge for the First Judicial Circuit.

Elected to Senate in 1912. In January, 1913, he was elected to the United States Senate to succeed George Peabody Wetmore. He was re-elected in 1918.

In 1873 he married Miss Louise Leary in Chicago, who died in 1922. Three daughters survive this union.

When President Wilson returned to this country after the signing of the Versailles treaty, Senator Colt was disposed to favor the acceptance of the covenant of the League of Nations, but some reservations less stringent than those proposed by Senator Lodge. With the specific pledge of article 10 removed by reservation of the Senate, the Senator was prepared for its acceptance by this Government.

The Senator's uncle, Samuel Colt, invented the revolving cartridge chamber.

Hiram Johnson May Succeed to Immigration Committee Post. By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—Senator Colt's death leaves vacant the chairmanship of the Senate Immigration Committee and may result in the elevation to that post of Senator Hiram Johnson of California, a prominent figure in the recent fight for Japanese exclusion.

Ranking next to Senator Colt among Republican members of the committee was Senator Sterling of South Dakota, but he has been defeated for renomination and if he takes the chairmanship he can serve only until next March 4.

Senator Johnson, who ranks after Sterling, is chairman of the Committee on Territories and Insular Possessions, and may not desire to give up that place to become head of the Immigration Committee. In that event, the immigration chairmanship probably will go to Senator Keyes of New Hampshire.

Senator Colt, although active in the discharge of his congressional duties, seldom participated in debate on the floor. As chairman of the Immigration Committee last session, he yielded to Senator Reed of Pennsylvania the conduct of the

SEVEN PERFORMANCES OF CARMEN WILL BE GIVEN

Opera Will Continue Through Week, When Fairy Tale Pageant Is Postponed.

Seven instead of six performances of "Carmen" will be given next week at the Municipal Theater, it was announced today. According to first plans, there was to have been no performance on Wednesday night, as the Park and Wayground Association had reserved the theater on that evening for its annual fairy tale pageant. However, the association has now resigned its reservation, with the result that the "Carmen" performances, beginning Sunday night, will run continuously to and including Saturday evening. On the Sunday night following, principals of the cast will present a grand opera concert at the Odeon.

WESLEY G. SLUDER DEAD

Wesley Greenfield Sluder, 74 years old, who retired last January as credit manager of the Majestic Manufacturing Co., died today at his home, 4237 Shenandoah avenue, from hardening of the arteries. He had been ill several months.

He is survived by his wife, Annie, and the following children: Mrs. Lola G. Nichols, Wesley Greenfield Sluder Jr., Louis A. Sluder, Mrs. Mildred Gross and Miss Betty May Sluder, and a brother, Dr. Greenfield Sluder, noted throat specialist.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from an undertaking chapel at 3821 Olive street, with interment at Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Immigration bill upon the floor, because of his opposition to the basis for future immigration which was enacted into law, and also because of his lack of sympathy of total exclusion of the Japanese.

DEPUTY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT DIES OF WOUND

Edward Carr Succumbs After Two Weeks' Rally From Wound Received in Fight.

Deputy Sheriff Edward Carr, died today at St. Mary's Hospital East St. Louis, from a bullet wound in the abdomen, suffered two weeks ago when Deputy Sheriff Henry Bishop and Joseph Schrader with an alleged automobile thief, it was believed at first that Carr was on the road to recovery, but he suffered a relapse Friday, when pneumonia set in.

Carr was with Bishop and Schrader off a lookout for a payroll robber who Bishop and Schrader had been informed would attempt to rob the cashier of the Liberty Theater, 211 Missouri avenue, at 19 a. m. Aug. 4. They were stationed at different points in the vicinity of the theater, when the attention of Schrader was called to a man who was said to have stolen an automobile.

Prisoner Tried to Escape. Schrader for the moment abandoned the watch for the payroll robber and seized the man, Paul Glasco, 21 years old, of Ziegler, Ill. Bishop and Carr also came forward and started to accompany Schrader to the latter's office, where Bishop and Schrader conduct a detective agency.

As they started to pass the Liberty Theater, Glasco struck at Schrader, broke from his grasp and dashed into the theater, which was empty, except for a janitor.

Bishop was first to follow and overtook Glasco in one of the aisles, where a fight ensued. Glasco and Bishop fell between some seats and Schrader, who had then come up, reached over the struggling men and struck Glasco on the head with a revolver. Glasco managed to get up, still fighting with Bishop and was again knocked down by Schrader. He arose a third time and seized Schrader's revolver, according to the latter, causing it to be discharged.

Bullet Hits Carr. The bullet passed through Glasco's left arm and struck Carr, who was near the theater entrance at the time. After this Glasco was overpowered, taken to the County Hospital and subsequently charged in warrants with attempting to kill Bishop and Carr. He is also charged with having stolen an automobile belonging to the city. His skull was fractured by blows from Schrader's revolver.

Schrader today stated that Bishop at no time had his revolver out and that Glasco at all times was struggling to get possession of Bishop's weapon.

Carr's duties as Deputy Sheriff

were confined for the most part to bailiff in the East St. Louis City Court, but he occasionally went out on arrests with other deputies. He was 32 years old and lived at 415 North Twenty-second street. A few days after he was shot an East St. Louis newspaper conducted a subscription campaign for him, raising $1600 in 24 hours.

Bishop and Schrader formerly were detectives in the East St. Louis Police Department. In October, 1923, they killed Lew Trider, a robber who murdered Detective Sergeant Harry W. Lemken of St. Louis.

Moving Six States Sixty Miles

A big undertaking you'll say—transporting every man, woman and child in the States of Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee and Kentucky—but if all the passengers who rode L. & N. trains during 1923 could be gathered together in one great group—more than thirteen million people, or nearly 12% of the Nation's population—it would require a train of 158,536 coaches with every seat occupied. Such a train would reach from Washington to San Francisco, an airline distance of approximately 2,200 miles.

Every day over 36,000 passengers get on L. & N. trains and travel on an average approximately 60 miles, and there has not been a single passenger fatality in a train accident during the past four years.

This is what L. & N. passenger service alone means to you; and it should give the readers of this newspaper a further idea of the importance of the transportation industry, which as a whole is doing a better job than ever before in the history of America—or of the world.

Saving 500 Million Dollars Annually

THE Oil and Gas Journal, of July 24, 1924, says: "Measured in terms of what is saved car and truck owners in the prices they must have paid for gasoline, if no cracking process had been in use, cracking saved the motorist last year probably $500,000,000."

"And this is the significance of cracking", continues this journal—"a significance that can be measured in dollars saved to the millions who call at the filling station for gasoline."

The entire business of cracking gasoline has been developed since January 7, 1913, when the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) was granted its first patent for what is known as the Burton Cracking Process.

In 1923 there were some 2000 cracking "units" in operation, of which about 1600 were Burton Process, and the remaining 400 scattered among other cracking processes of more recent origin.

During 1923 the 14 million cars and trucks used about 6,800,000,000 gallons of gasoline.

Despite the flood of crude oil, during 1923, there were but 4,950,000,000 gallons of straight run gasoline available for these 14 million cars and trucks.

Hence it is obvious that without the cracking process now so generally in use, gasoline prices would have been substantially higher than they were and one-fourth of these vehicles could not have been operated.

This clear, simple statement of facts, verified and set forth in a non-partisan manner in a keen review of the situation by Charles E. Bowles in the Oil and Gas Journal, is more convincing than a dozen arguments in proving the immense service which the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has rendered the automobilist, by developing the Burton Cracking Process, and by inventing stills and other refining machinery to a point where there is practically no crude which cannot be treated and made to yield substantial quantities of good gasoline.

If the Oil and Gas Journal is correct in its figures, and we believe that they are conservative, the average saving per car was $35.72 for 1923—a saving essentially due to the progressive policy of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

UNION LABOR SPLIT

OVER LA FOLLETTE

Head of Pressmen's Union Announces He Will Support Davis and Bryan.

By JOHN J. LEARY JR., Staff Correspondent of the New York World and the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The division in the ranks of organized labor over the endorsement of La Follette and Wheeler by the executive council of the American Federation of Labor, is emphasized by the announcement that Maj. George L. Berry of Tennessee, president of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union, will support Davis and Bryan.

Berry, it was declared, had so informed Davis and will shortly, perhaps in the convention of his organization to be held at Pressmen's Home, Tenn., late in the month, make formal announcement of his position.

Berry, an outstanding figure in the organization, who had the endorsement and support of labor for the vice presidential nomination in the Democratic national convention, is the first of the more important union chiefs to take a position in opposition to the recommendation of Mr. Gompers and his associates.

Others, including the heads of two of the largest international unions in the Federation, are expected to take similar positions in the next few weeks.

It also developed yesterday that there is very grave doubt of the State Federation of Labor, of which James P. Holland is president, accepting the recommendations of the Federation in the convention to be held prior to Labor day. According to those in closest touch with the affairs of the State body, that body is almost certain to insist upon a hands-off policy.

GILPATRIC LOST IN COPPER

Bank Defaulter Said to Be Out Large Sum in Deal. By the Associated Press. PUTNAM, Conn., Aug. 18.—That Harold G. Gilpatric, cashier of the wrecked First National Bank and former State Treasurer, who shot himself in an attempt at suicide Aug. 7, lost a large sum of money in speculation in copper, was disclosed today, when another citizen of Putnam reported that he had lost $18,000 in a copper deal and that Gilpatric, who had invested at the same time, had lost an even greater sum.

It was also disclosed today that National Bank examiners, who have been investigating the affairs of the closed bank have been unable to find a $1800 Liberty Bond entrusted to Gilpatric's care by an elderly Putnam woman. Subscriptions for a new bank to replace the one closed had reached $124,550 today.

Richards-Hunter Team Favored to Beat Australians

U. S. Doubles Teams Figure Patterson and Wood Most Formidable Rivals.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHESTNUT HILLS, BROOKLINE, Mass., Aug. 18.—The national doubles championship opened here today with a list of entrants sounding like a roll call of delegates to a world court or league of nations. Among the countries represented are Mexico, China, France, Canada, Australia and South Africa. The feature match of the day was that between W. M. Johnston and C. J. Griffin vs. R. L. Murray and N. W. Niles.

Gerald Patterson and Pat O'Hara Wood, the Australian stars, who last week eliminated the Japanese team in the Davis cup play, met K. H. Behr and Nat Mather.

Vincent Richards and Francis T. Hunter are picked by tennis enthusiasts here as the most likely pair to stop the Australians.

Several former championship pairs have entered, but the titlists of 1923, W. T. Tilden II and B. I. C. Norton, are not defending, the former having elected to play with his protegee, A. L. Wiesner of Philadelphia, and Norton being teamed with Wray Brown, also of St. Louis.

Weathermen Coming to U. S.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Pierre Wertheimer, owner of Epinal, will leave France on the Berengaria next Saturday. He is coming to witness the three races in which Epinal is entered on American tracks.

THE WEEKLY SERIAL ON Love, Marriage AND THE Modern Woman

Next Week—BEATRICE GRIMSHAW on "Marriage vs. the Gypsy Life"

When Is a Marriage Not a Marriage?

Arthur Train's unusually active career as a lawyer, both in the New York District Attorney's office and in private practice, has provided him with precisely those contacts which give background and weight to the present discussion.

Especially pertinent is Mr. Train's remark that, "I have been constantly struck by the ignorance of clients regarding such an elementary legal proposition as that the law does not permit all persons of the opposite sex to marry."

By ARTHUR TRAIN.

"WHOM God hath joined together, let no man put asunder." The facts sometimes seem to belie the inevitability of the priestly injunction, but the answer is simple enough. The church does not regard those to whom it grants marital relief as ever having been joined together by the Almighty. It does not divorce; it declares void.

This is no mere sophistry, either. To accept any sort of ceremony, legal or ecclesiastical, as conclusive upon one's entire future, from which there can be no escape for any cause whatever, would be to return to the Dark Ages. No! Quarrel as we may about divorce, we must all agree that certain marriages should be prohibited by law and, if entered into, should be declared null and of no effect.

One does not have to be a lawyer to realize that certain marriages cannot be regarded as marriages at all, either in the eyes of the law or of the church. This has to be so. Some people are physically unable to marry, some are mentally incompetent, some are tricked into marriage, and some have marriages thrust upon them. For all such, by every sanction of humanity and public policy, there must be a means of escape, although at the same time and by the same means, other underserving persons may seek to evade their marital obligations.

Marriage as a sacrament. Divorce grants relief for reasons arising after marriage, for which, presumably, one or the other of the parties is to blame. Annulments are granted for cause existing before the parties are united, and which vitiate the contract. In this realm, rather than that of divorce, lies the romance, the drama, the humor, and the pathos of the law of marriage.

All of the good, and some of the evil, of these marital laws grew out of the effort of the early church to elevate marriage by declaring marriage a sacrament and practically indissoluble—for, later on the church found its control of marriage a valuable political asset which it was loath to relinquish.

Law is composed about equally of common sense and of precedent—that is, what was, or seemed to be, common sense, at the time the law grew up, but which has since ceased to be so. It seemed quite sensible to our American forefathers to chuck old women into horse-pens in order to find out whether or not they were witches, by watching to see if they would float; quite natural to prosecute crows, cows, rats, cats, leeches, and lice for crimes, and to banish and excommunicate them; to treat all persons who could read and write as a privileged class on the ground that they were "clerks" or clergy and hence not liable to punishment for their peccadilloes in the courts; to forfeit to the King as a "dead-end" the wheel of a cart that had run over and killed some unfortunate man, on the theory that it was somehow tainted with guilt.

Governed by the Law of Moses. Besides, law did not always have to be a question of common sense. Why argue about it, when all you had to do to find out what the law ought to be was to look in the Bible? The famous "Blue Laws" of Connecticut were merely the literal precepts of the Bible. The code, taken bodily from Leviticus and Deuteronomy. The Rev. Davenport, addressing the first meeting, declared with unanimous approval from all the Colonists that: "The scriptures do hold forth a perfect rule for the direction and government of all men and all duties which they are to perform to God and man, as well in a government of families and commonwealth as in the Church."

Accordingly it was moved, seconded, and promptly carried, to adopt as their local by-laws and ordinances the precepts of the Pentateuch. Do not imagine that this is of no importance to you and me. We are still governed by the law of Moses in many matters; and that same way of getting law ready-made continues to be popular. Only a year or so ago, some western States proposed a bill making it a crime to violate any one of the Ten Commandments.

"Where shall I find my neighbor's sin?" it read. "shall be fined one hundred dollars."

The law of marriage is peculiarly encumbered with legal harpies. Marriages "void" and "voidable." The only way to answer the question of when is a marriage not a marriage is by saying promptly, if not very intelligently, "when one of the parties is disqualified or where there is force, or fraud, or mistake, or where they have not conformed to the forms of law." And it should be carefully noted that marriage may be "void" or "voidable"—that is to say, void only after having been so declared by a competent court, a finding of considerable interest, particularly to any children who may have been born during the union in the meantime.

The distinction between "void" and "voidable" marriages grew out may marry so long as he was not so drunk but that he knew what he was doing. In the old days this latter excuse did not go, since the common law permitted no one "to stultify himself." Deaf and dumb persons were formerly regarded as idiots and so could not legally marry. They now do so in the sign language.

Race, color, and social rank no longer act as bars to marriage to any extent, although they did in the past. Before the Civil War, slaves could not marry, but acts of Congress have since legitimized any such past relationship. Marriage between negroes and whites is forbidden in many states and so, on the Pacific coast, is marriage between Chinese and whites. The most interesting prohibitions under this head are the old statutes which forbade the intermarriage of Roman Catholics and Protestants in States like Massachusetts and Pennsylvania.

Twelve Bars to Marriage. In the practice of my profession I have been constantly struck by the ignorance of clients regarding such an elementary legal proposition as that the law does not permit all persons of the opposite sex to marry.

But besides (1) mental incapacity, (2) disqualification by law based on race, color, and, in some countries, rank and religion, and (3) the impediment of having an other husband or wife still living (the first marriage being still undissolved), there are many other bars to marriage, including (4) physical incapacity, (5) age, (6) consanguinity or nearness by blood, (7) affinity or nearness by marriage, (8) the use of force or "duress," physical or mental, (9) fraud, and false pretense, (10) mistake and error, (11) failure to observe the requirements of the local laws governing what is necessary to constitute a valid ceremony, and (12) failure to secure consent of parents where the parties, or one of them, are under age.

In a word, the "once-married-always-married" rule is a rule when you are actually married and, after talking to an expert divorce lawyer, you may be inclined to conclude that most people are not really married at all, but only think they are.

Alternatives of Escape. For the benefit of the unhappy reader who up to this moment has regarded his own case as hopeless, let me ask:

"Did you, dear sir or madam, marry while you were in a state of temporary insanity? Or during the pre-voided days? Or while you were under the influence of some drug administered to alleviate a bodily pain other than that of the heart? Did you, perchance, have a forgotten wife or husband lurking somewhere? Were you under the age of consent? Or was your spouse related to you by either blood or marriage—a cousin, perhaps? Or did he or she deceive you with false stories of the purity and innocence of the past?"

"Or, were you, perhaps, knocked down, bound hand and foot, and not really married, but only thought so? Or were you hypnotized? (You that cat will sometimes fight!) Or did you make a mistake and think you were marrying John when in fact you were marrying Jane, or Joan, instead of Jane? Or did you forget to publish the banns or get a license or ask the permission of your papa or mama? Then, dear reader, hope for you! Six months from now, not in wicked Paris or Reno, but in your own good, honest town, you may have successfully knocked the shackles from your ankles, the gyves from your wrists—and, like a bird freed from the cage, be looking for trouble all over again."

Age and Validity.

The law governing the so-called "age of consent" is unusual in several particulars. The main feature to be observed is that the marriage law differs from the law of contracts in that a person under 21 may still contract a perfectly valid marriage if he or she have reached "the age of consent," which varies in different countries and in different states. Thus "infancy" is not a bar to marriage as it is to contract. If married before the age of consent, however, either party may dissolve the marriage on reaching the required age, but if this does not occur, no new ceremony is necessary to render the marriage legal at common law and an election to affirm it will be inferred if nothing is said or done about it.

So, if the parties decide to stay married, they are bound forever—as husband and wife—for as fast, or at least as nearly so as anybody else is. The age of consent under the English Common Law was 14 years for boys and 12 for girls, a rule adopted from the Roman Law, but in this country the age varies widely for both, as it does in Continental countries. In 1914 the age of consent in Quebec was 14 and 15; in Ontario and Austria 14 and 16; in Kansas and Missouri 16 and 18; in Brazil and Iowa 16 and 18; in France, Italy, Belgium, Rumania, and California, 18 and 18; in Holland, Hungary, and most States of the Union, 18

FORBIDDEN MARRIAGES

"We all know without being told that the marriage of close blood relatives is likely to be disastrous from the standpoint of biology and genetics. But many of us do NOT know that the intermarriage of persons of entirely different blood and connected by marriage only, has likewise been forbidden from the earliest times. The reasons are historical, sentimental, legally fictional, and highly problematical."

and 16; in Denmark, Norway, and Germany, 21 and 18.

Having thus lightly touched upon the high spots of matrimonial disability, we come to the subject of legal fiction, and the one which has given most trouble than all the rest put together. For as a rule people do not rush into polygamy, trigamy, or even bigamy, insane people are pretty carefully looked after, prohibition protects the philanthropists from the philites of love, and children incline to obey their parents up to the middle of their teens. But men and women will fall in love with their cousins; and for some reason or other men want to marry their deceased wives' sisters. The reasons are unimportant. Suffice that they do. And it has also made trouble ever since the Eighteenth Chapter of Leviticus where God's disapproval of such irregular instances is set forth with all the picturesque of the Hebrew scribe.

"Consanguinity" and "Affinity." Now we all know without being told that the marriage of close blood relatives is likely to be disastrous from the standpoint of biology and genetics. But many of us do not know that the intermarriage of persons of entirely different blood and connected by marriage only has likewise been forbidden from the earliest times. The reasons are historical, sentimental, legally fictional, and highly problematical. The author of Leviticus said that such marriages are "wicked-kind" because they are "near of kin" and let it go at that. The question of what constitutes "consanguinity" is a matter of Church, building upon this general statement, developed it, largely for the sake of political leverage during the Middle Ages, to an astonishing degree. But the English law went further and put "affinity" on the same footing with "consanguinity" as a bar to marriage.

Archbishop Parker's table of degrees of descent, 1534, is the standard adopted in the English ecclesiastical courts. It applies equally to illegitimate as well as legitimate children and to relatives of the half-blood equally with those of the whole, and it provides that a man may not marry his grandmother, grandfather's wife, wife's grandmother, father's sister, mother's sister, father's brother's wife, mother's brother's wife, wife's father's sister, wife's mother's sister, Mother, step-mother, wife's mother, daughter, wife's daughter, etc. These general principles are recognized in the United States, although the doctrine of "affinity," which forbids marriage between those connected by marriage, is not applied nearly so stringently. As to a Deceased Wife's Sister, but why on earth should the law forbid marriage between a man and one of his wife's kindred? Let us see! One reason might be the legal fiction that a man and his wife are one person, which "logically" makes a man make a man the same relation to his wife's sister as to his own—and, of course, a man cannot marry his sister! Another might be the problematical confusion of domestic rights and duties which could theoretically result from such a union; and another would be the possibility that the sister might conspire with the husband to get away with the wife in order to get her job—if it was open to her by law.

We must agree that any one of these is far fetched. Yet the canonical rule was absolutely clear that wherever relationship to a man himself would be a bar to a marriage, with him, relationship to his deceased wife would be the same bar, on the ground of "affinity." To such extreme lengths was the doctrine carried that relationship by adoption or baptism was put on the same basis as that of blood, and prior to the Council of Trent the relationship of god-parents to godchildren was a bar to marriage.

The affinity idea is nothing new. "Solomon made affinity with Pharaoh, King of Egypt, and took Pharaoh's daughter"—I Kings iii: 1. For general purposes, it may be enough to say that the law of consanguinity usually prohibits marriages between persons nearer in relationship than first cousins; and there are some States of the Union that forbid marriages nearer than second cousins.

The Bitterest Controversy. Is consanguinity absolute affinity? In some of the United States, a man may not marry his father's widow, his wife's daughter, his grandfather's widow, his wife's grandmother, his own widow, his mother-in-law, his grandfather's widow or his wife's sister, daughter. Why? Answer the

THE SKEPTICAL SEX. NEXT to convincing a mule or a second-hand motor car, convincing a man when he doesn't WANT to be convinced is the hardest feat on earth.

You may convince him that you love him—but once the idea has taken root you can never convince him that you have gotten over loving him, no matter what he may have done to cure you.

You may convince him that you can't be kissed—but you can never convince him that you don't want to be kissed.

You may convince him that you are good and sweet, and even angelic—but never that you are reasonable, frank and logical.

You may convince him that he isn't an Adonis—but never that there isn't something "taking with women" about him.

You may convince him that you understand him—but you can never convince him that you see THROUGH him.

You may convince him that he's going the pace that kills—but never that some woman isn't "driving him" to it.

You may convince him that you adore him madly—but never that you like him just a little or admire him mildly.

You may convince him that your prophecies were right—but you can never convince him that he was mistaken in his judgment.

You may convince him that a girl has never been made love to—but never that she couldn't be made love to.

You may convince him that a woman's intuition is uncanny—but never that he can't succeed in fooling her.

You may convince him that he looks "fascinating" in evening clothes and attractive in a high collar—but never that he looks unattractive in a bathing suit.

You may convince him that a brunette is sincere—but never that a blonde isn't frivolous or that a red-haired woman isn't dangerous.

You may convince him that you know that all his love-making is "apple sauce"—but never that you don't enjoy listening to it.

You may convince him against his will, against his better judgment, against his instinct, his principles and his sense of self-preservation—

But you can NEVER convince him against his inclination!

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Quicker Work.

When cutting marshmallows, dip the scissors in ice water and the candy will not stick to them.

Tea Camouflage.

A small piece of dried orange peel in the tea canister will give an imported flavor to an inexpensive blend of tea.

A Help in Many Ways.

A little vinegar or even lemon juice added to the water when boiling cabbage will improve the flavor and color and cause less odor to permeate through the house.

Iodine Stains.

Iodine stains will usually wash out when the garment is laundered. However, should they prove obstinate, peroxide will remove the stains from white materials.

Ask for a Sample.

If you are undecided as to the new paper in your room, try a large sample of your selection in the room before deciding. Reflected light from adjoining wall, roof or lawn may change the color entirely and you will be dissatisfied with the results when the paper is hung.

Waffles.

Beat smooth one pint of milk, three heaping tablespoons of flour, one tablespoonful of melted butter, a teaspoonful of salt, three beaten eggs, yolks and the egg whites beaten stiffly. When all is beaten smooth, a little more flour may be added if the batter seems too thick. The batter should be rather thin. Cook the waffles in the usual way.

THIS is the time of year when almost every woman realizes that her summer wardrobe requires most of all a fresh stroke of costume. The arrival of the crepe de chine cape frock therefore is particularly timely. This very becoming frock is graceful and sunny, but has a hint of fall, and it has, furthermore, the suggestion of the costume to enter it to the woman who desires a complete and dignified ensemble for street wear.

The first design is distinctively youthful. The straight skirt is separate and attached to a waistband. The cape top is a belted long-sleeved over-bustle with a crisp gilet of white organdie finishing its V neckline and a rather neat circular cape attached to the shoulders. The note of white is repeated in the cape lining of white crepe de chine and in the white kid belt. Four and a half yards of material should be sufficient, and the usual charge for labor be allowed. A tailored gilet of this type may be purchased at any good shop for about $1.25, and the belt will be no more than 75 cents.

Labor ..... $22.00
Four and one-half yards of crepe de chine, at $3 a yard ..... 13.50
One and a quarter yards of white crepe for lining, at $3 a yard ..... 3.75
White gilet ..... 1.25
White belt ..... .75
Total ..... $41.25

The second model is more severe in line and more suitable for the very young. The long fitted skirt is small enough to be desirable in this model, of the dress but the short variety may be to the front of the skirt. The skirt is fitted and the same charge for labor, of the belt of the dress, at 35 cents a dozen. The third sketch shows with three buttons, the light frock with the same bottom, the skirt in the circular flare

the bottom of the skirt. The sleeves are short and tight, the little cape is pleated and has a straight round neckband finished with ends of the material, which tie in a soft bow at the left shoulder.

Five yards of crepe de chine will be required for this model, and the labor cost should not exceed $23. An excellent quality of crepe de chine may be purchased for $3 a yard, bringing the total cost to $37.

The cost of these distinctive and extremely new cape frocks is in each case lower than a corresponding model would be if purchased ready made, and has the further advantage of being made to fit you of the better sort of materials.

There are several rules which must be adhered to in assembling such a frock. It can be successfully turned out only by an experienced dressmaker, so do not economize in this regard. The emphasis must be on the cape, the frock itself should therefore be subserviently simple. The cape must be a part of the frock and never give the appearance of a separate garment. And it should never fall lower than the waistline.

CHAPTER XIX.

A LETTER LEFT BEHIND.

THE sun, climbing triumphantly above the dark, mist-drenched pines, woke Marjorie from uneasy slumber. She had slept after all, curled up in a corner of the great couch.

She came back to the world of realities slowly, dazedly. She remembered the denouement of the previous night, her wedding night, when she had shrunk from Hollister and, in her terror of him, cried out the truth.

There was no recalling that sobbed confession, the confession that she had never loved him, but had married him for the wealth he could give her family. He knew the truth in all its stark sordidness. Never again would she have to act the lie. But the consequences—

She shuddered when she thought what her mother and Dan would say, how they would upbraid her for wrecking their future after all their careful planning. For, of course, he would cast her off.

Stiffly, she rose, slipped off her dinner gown of the night before and had a hot tub, followed by an icy shower. It sent the young blood singing through her veins. A brisk towel, a quick coiffure, and the crispness of morning frocks brought her spirits partially back from the slough of despondency into which they had fallen.

It was hard to be wretched, even with the future black and ominous before one, when the sun shone from a cloudless sapphire sky and the whole beautiful, flaming forest was awakened to greet a perfect autumn day.

The Indian girl came shyly to summon her to breakfast. She went laggingly, dreading the meeting with Hollister. She had no idea where he had gone, what he had done, after that terrible moment the night before when he had bowed to her with formal courtesy and left her alone on the parson.

But her apprehensions were in vain. Hollister did not appear. She breakfasted quite alone in the sunny, flower-filled room, with birds carolling gayly outside the open casements and the pungent scents of the forest drifting in on the vagrant breeze.

After breakfast, she went out on the veranda that overlooked the valley, the scene of last night's denouement. She was sitting there, her hands folded quietly in her lap, when the old Indian glided out.

Without a word and with a face as inscrutable as a mask, he handed her an envelope. She took it hesitantly, opened it, found a single sheet of paper and read:

"My dear Marjorie:—When you receive this I shall be well on my way toward New York. I shall leave as soon as it is dawn and the mountain trails are safe for driving. It is better that I do not say good-by."

"Please understand this: the lodge and all it contains are yours. When you tire of it, there are cars in the garage to bring you back to town. The old Indian will drive and you will be quite safe with him, I assure you. If you prefer to live in New York, I will open the apartment for you, but should you rather return to Soundview, that, too, will be my consideration."

"Perhaps, you do not know that I purchased Soundview, intending to make you a postnuptial present of it. I shall do so now, through my attorney, and shall arrange that its upkeep devolves upon me. The bank account which I opened in your name will be for your own personal expenses and regular deposits will be made, also through my attorney."

Do You Know That—

A Hungarian engineer has invented a gramophone no larger than a watch. There is room inside for ten plates, giving a repertoire of twenty selections. By placing the instrument on a champagne glass the sound is amplified sufficiently for an ordinary-sized room.

An earthquake travels at the rate of between 170 feet and 530 feet per second.

Thirty thousand cubic feet of air weighs roughly one ton.

In the manufacture of adrenalin crystals, used to raise the blood pressure in cases of collapse and so on, 50,000 ome are required to supply the crude material for a single pound. This material is made from a small gland which surrounds the kidney, and was discovered by a Japanese doctor named Takamine.

In the 1923 report of the Uganda Railway is the quaint entry: "Two native passengers killed by wild animals."

He went to summon the old Indian.

Children's Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

The Real Master of the Old Pasture

Full master of himself is he Who master of his fate would be.
—Old Mother Nature.

PETER RABBIT sat in a bramble-tangle close to a bend in the old path in the Old Pasture and watched Buzstall the Rattlesnake taking a sun bath in the middle of the old path. Very thoughtful was Peter Rabbit. "It doesn't do," thought Peter, "to jump to conclusions. Because Reddy Fox, than whom there is no one I fear more, was afraid of Old Man Coyote and therefore was polite to him, I thought that Old Man Coyote was master of the Old Pasture. Then Old Man Coyote by his very politeness proved his fear of Buster Bear, and I thought Buster Bear was master of the Old Pasture. But Buster Bear politely stepped aside for Jimmy Skunk. And then Jimmy Skunk politely walked around Buzstall the Rattlesnake. Not once had I thought of Buzstall. But now I guess there is no doubt that Buzstall is really the master of the Old Pasture."

For a long time Peter continued to sit there thinking and out in front of him Buzstall the rattlesnake continued to take his sun bath in the middle of the old cow path. But at last Peter heaved a noise up the old cow path. Some one was coming. Eagerly he looked to see who it was. Who do you think it was? It was Farmer Brown's boy. Yes, sir, it was Farmer Brown's boy. He had a big shiny pall in each hand. He had come to the Old Pasture for his share of those delicious berries.

Peter turned to look at Buzstall. Buzstall had coiled and his head was raised as he stared straight ahead of him without winking. He knew some one was coming. "Oh!" thought Peter. "I wonder what will happen now! I do hope Buzstall will warn Farmer Brown's boy in time."

Yes, sir, it was Farmer Brown's Boy

Buzstall did. He always does give warning if he has a chance. Farmer Brown's boy stopped short. "Hello!" he exclaimed aloud. "There must be a Rattlesnake in the path just ahead." He put his palls down on the ground. Then he looked around for a stick. At last he found one to suit him. Very carefully and watchfully he started around the bend in the old cow path. He saw Buzstall the Rattlesnake coiled in the middle of the path. He was shaking his rattle as hard as he could. Farmer Brown's boy stopped.

Buzstall remained coiled only long enough to see who it was standing in the old cow path. With surprising quickness he uncoiled and glided straight into the very bramble-tangle in which Peter Rabbit was sitting. You should have seen Peter Rabbit leave that bramble-tangle! He didn't wait to see what Farmer Brown's boy would do. No, sir, he didn't wait. He got out of that bramble-tangle as fast as his legs could take him.

Farmer Brown's boy did nothing. He simply stood still. He couldn't get at Buzstall in that bramble-tangle and he knew it. At last he spoke. He has a way of talking to himself when he is alone. "Buzstall left in a hurry," said he. "I've always said that a Rattlesnake is an honest Snake. He isn't looking for trouble. He gives warning when he has a chance to, and then avoids trouble if he can." Farmer Brown's boy once more picked up his palls and continued on his way.

When Peter had a chance to think things over he knew at last he had discovered the real master of the Old Pasture. Buzstall the Rattlesnake, whom all others feared, had run from Farmer Brown's boy.

Extra Bright
Friends Convene
and Play
Snappy Game.

A Good
Time Was Had by Nearly All.

Dear editor:
A FEW weeks ago I described in these columns a kind of a parlor game that could be played to while away an evening at a house party or something. They was such a wild rush for copies of the paper that day that a good many folks failed to get copies and has wrote in requesting that I repeat how to play the game.

Well the rules is very simple, namely that four or five or any number of extra bright people set around the parlor or out on the porch and carry on a conversation in which each speech has got to contain the name of some certain kind of a object, like for inst. the name of a city of over 20 population. When I wrote this game up before it was cities they had to name and I give a sample conversation to show what I was getting at. This time we will make it capital cities which will make it a whole lot more difficult.

For convenience sake we will say that five people is engaged in the game and their names are Black, Kelly, Mrs. Kelly, Gary and Mrs. Gary.

Kelly (to his wife)—Dear, did you call up the Parkers today? You know you ought to.

Mrs. Kelly—No, I didn't call them up, but I sent Paul over to see them.

Black (to Gary)—Say, Lem, is that town the Parkers come from a Republican town?

Gary—No, no. It's a Jefferson City.

Kelly—Have you noticed what a fine score Hagen has been making in the golf match over in London?

Black—No. What tally has he? Kelly—He has averaged 72, which sounds pretty good, though I don't know what par is.

Black—My brother Sacra meant to play in that tournament, but couldn't get away.

Mrs. Kelly—He's defending my brother in that damage suit, isn't he? I know my brother said he sent a fee to him, but he wouldn't take it.

Black—Foe? Niz! Not when your brother has been so nice about singing for us at parties.

Mrs. Kelly (to Gary)—Did you ever hear my brother Lem sing?

Gary—No, I was at a party once where he sang, but just as he was beginning, Mrs. Gary disappeared and I couldn't have Anna disappearing when nearly every room was supplied with a bowl of punch.

Sky Anna a Cut up.

Mrs. Gary—And I was only up in the dressing room, fixing my lips. You can't have much of a ball on rouge.

Mrs. Kelly—I've often been at Lem to sing at my parties, but he won't.

Kelly—I'll bet Nash will. Black—Do you remember the night we asked Mr. Ridley to sing and he got so mad his son had to take him home?

Gary—He certainly was a mad Ridi!

Mrs. Gary—Well, we must be starting to roam home.

Mrs. Kelly—Oh, not yet! Monty is coming in a minute with refreshments. You must have at least a Frankfort.

Kelly—I bought the Frankforts yesterday from a lame man. He was going past the house and I said, "Oh, limp, here, my man, and I will buy some Frankforts."

Mrs. Kelly—Here comes Montgomery now. And he's got some apples, too.

Kelly (to Gary)—Did you ever see such apples as that? An Indian apple is much smaller.

Mrs. Kelly (to Mrs. Gary)—If you'll wait a minute I'll have Mont peel your apple for you.

Mrs. Gary—How is Mont's girl friend? She was so quiet and nice I used to call her shy Ann.

Kelly—Quiet! Say, she raises hell in a crowd of youngsters!

Mrs. Gary—Raleigh?

Kelly—Yes, on the square. Her parents made her quit going out with the boys.

Gary—I suppose the war saw the start of this boldness among girls.

Mrs. Gary—Well, we really must trot along. We'll see you in August again.

See where Cal Coolidge accepted the Republican nomination for President. Just as we claimed he would do all along.

HOPE SO.

Maybe next year when the scales have been changed to world's series proportions the Browns will get down to brass tacks and lay down the bacon f. a. b. St. Louis.

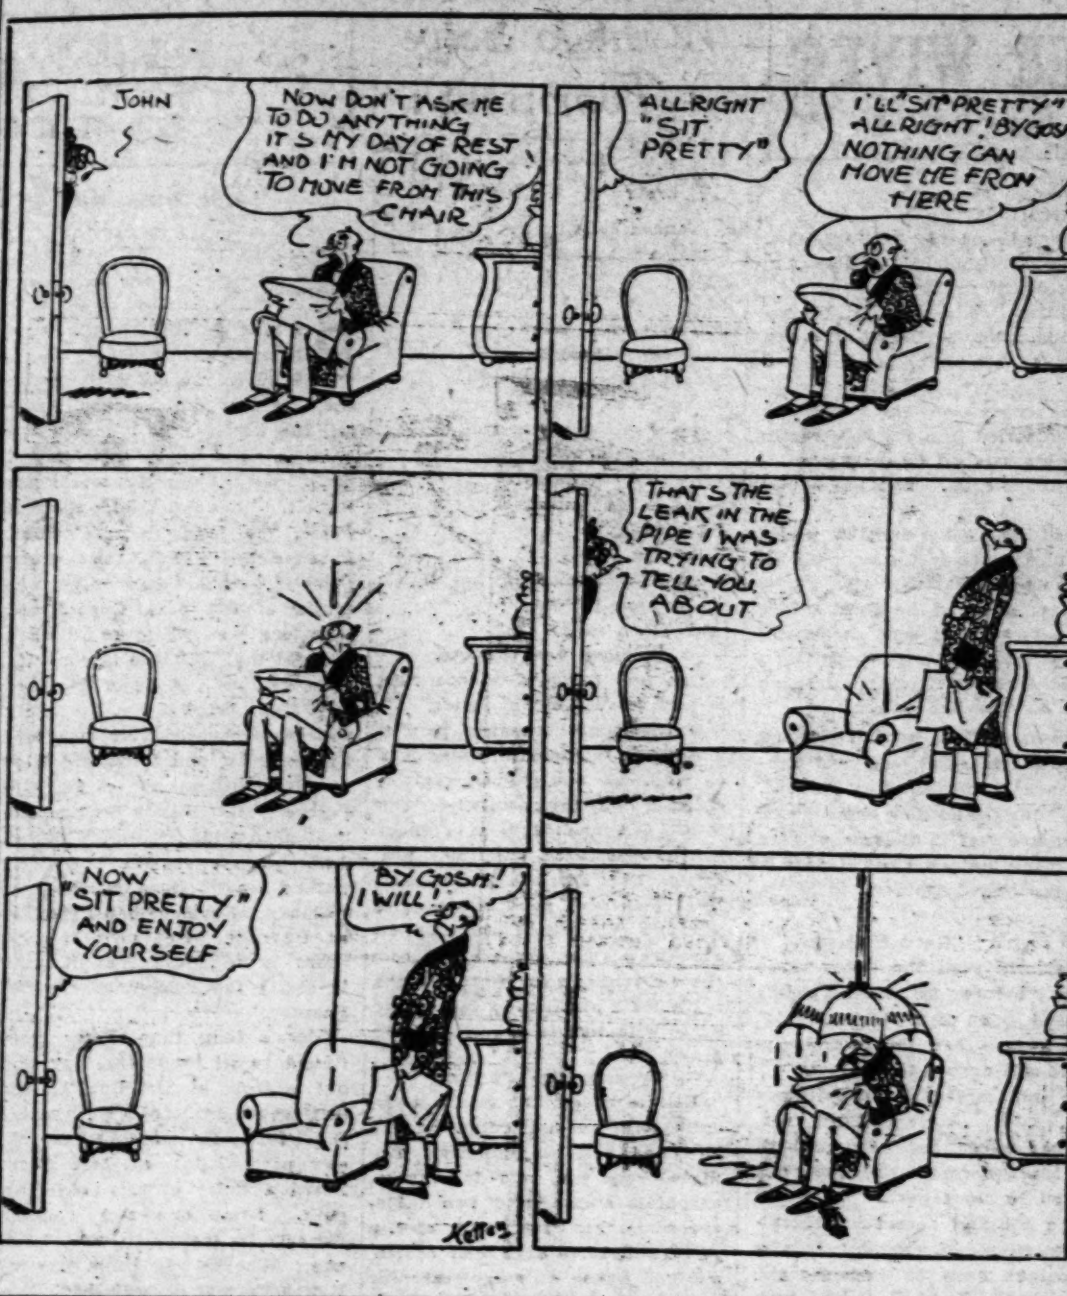

The coast guard is preparing to wage a big war on the rum smugglers along the Atlantic Coast. Business of piping all hands to grog.

ATTN BOY!

The Republican party in Texas has denounced the Klan. Demonstrating that there is at least one man in Texas who believes in religious freedom.

Every day the fact becomes more and more apparent that John W. Davis is superman. Even Jim Reed gods no fault in him.

By the Associated Press.
LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 19.—Lincoln returned to normal today after having last night witnessed a fourth celebration attending notification to members of the Bryan family of their nomination for the Democratic party.

William Jennings Bryan had been honored by Middle-Western towns on three different occasions when he was notified of his nomination for the presidency. Last night "Brother Charlie," Governor of the State and its adopted son for 29 years, received the high honor in his political life when he was formally notified of his nomination as Democratic candidate for the vice presidency.

Democratic party leaders tonight shifted the political spotlight from Lincoln to Chicago, where they will meet to discuss the campaign. Bryan yesterday went to Chicago with the Democratic field marshal to discuss the details of his campaign. He announced that he will be in Chicago on any date or place, before leaving, however, he had told the Governor "to be in it" and intimated the nomination would occur this State before he left.

The State Fair opens in Lincoln Sept. 1, but whether the Governor will appear as a political speaker remains undetermined. Shaver announced that John W. Davis, party standard bearer, would take the Middle West during his campaign and probably would make speeches in Omaha and Lincoln. The big University of Nebraska memorial stadium furnished space for the celebration last night, a colorful and, at times, dramatic audience nearly filled the stadium, while some scattered on the grass football field close to the speaker's platform.

Attacks on G. O. P. Chaired. Cheers greeted declarations of the vice presidential nominee, Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, who made the notification address in which they denounced the Republican administration failure to solve many of the needs of the country and lauded the principles for which Democratic party would fight to win a victory in the November elections.

The speakers were handicapped by the lack of lighting facilities, having the unusual experience of addressing their remarks to an audience seated in semi-darkness, the only lights reflecting on them being those placed on the rim of the stadium. Those on the speaker's platform, however, carried every word on the platform throughout. Speakers and other members of the notification committee at Lincoln were able to hear the speech, as the amplification of the microphone on the platform and the immediate vicinity was so continuous that it drowned out responses of the crowd.

Pays Tribute to Davis. Gov. Bryan paid a tribute to party's standard bearer, John Davis, called the Democratic platform "as one on which both Bryan and Davis stood as one, and named the political organization which nominated him as one which the progressive farmers and wage-earners could rely upon. Woodrow Wilson's support, Bryan was cheered by those that the Democratic party was broad, strong and progressive enough to satisfy the belief in "that great Democratic principle."

The first of Gov. Charles Bryan's address accepting the Democratic nomination for vice presidency will be given on June 12.
